Campbell offers a number of volunteer project placements for students wanting work experience in local communities or for those who have a love of nature and the outdoors.

The volunteer programme includes 4 weeks of full-time English study at The Campbell Institute and 4 to 8 weeks of volunteer work per project. Up to three project placements can be arranged per student.

Volunteers are placed into a variety of projects in a variety of locations around New Zealand, including schools, farms, conservation projects and social projects.

Blue Duck Station Volunteer Programme

Located in the Ruapehu District National Park, Blue Duck Station is an outdoor enthusiast's playground. This project aims to conserve endangered wildlife, increase the health of native bush and rivers while educating visitors about the New Zealand blue duck, other native species and local history. Volunteer work varies from cleaning and working in the café to conservation, gardening and farming.

The CELTA course (The University of Cambridge Certificate in English Language Teaching to Adults) is a practical, hands-on, English teaching qualification.

Administered by Cambridge University ESOL, CELTA is a standardised course, which means that you can take the course anywhere in the world, cover the same syllabus, and be assessed by the same criteria. Therefore a pass on the CELTA course is recognised throughout the world regardless of where it is studied.

CELTA is an initial teaching qualification, so no previous teaching experience is required. CELTA is also popular with those who have some teaching experience, but no formal qualification.

The CELTA course provides candidates with a mix of hands-on teaching experience, teaching methodology and practical classroom techniques.

Applications and selection are continuous, and are processed as they arrive. Don't miss out by applying late! Depending on the number of applicants there may be a waiting list.

We hold regular CELTA information evenings. For more information contact us:

Accommodation

Your home away from home

Good accommodation is just as important as the place you study.

Campbell will take responsibility for your accommodation, personally selecting the best available homestays and apartments, and helping you with questions and advice on the best accommodation option for you.

Homestay

Why choose a homestay?

- Your homestay family will take care of you from the day you arrive
- Experience and learn about New Zealand cultures
- Practise your English with your homestay family
- Live in a real home - no need to buy furniture, bedding, or kitchenware
- You will have your own bedroom
- Develop a network of New Zealand friends and acquaintances
- Available for all ages

Homestay fees include:

- Your own bedroom with study desk and chair, wardrobe, drawers, and a heater
- Internet (additional fees may apply for heavy usage)
- Power, water, local phone calls
- Full board (three daily meals included)

All Campbell homestay families have been personally assessed and chosen by The Campbell Institute, and each family has a contractual obligation to meet certain standards. For example, hosts are required to provide a warm and comfortable bedroom, and a friendly family environment.

Homestay is generally booked week by week, but additional nights can also be booked if necessary. Campbell homestay placement fees include 1 free change of family, if needed.

Travel from homestay to Campbell is usually by bus, and average travel times are 25-35 minutes each way.

The Campbell Institute is a signatory to the New Zealand Government's Code of Practice for the Pastoral Care of International Students. Under The Code, homestay providers must be vetted by the New Zealand Police, and visited regularly to ensure the homestay environment is suitable.

Airport Transfers

Campbell provides an airport transfer service. A school representative, or your homestay family, will meet you at the airport, and take you to your arranged accommodation. We also provide an emergency contact in case you have any problems during your travel, such as delays, or missed connections.

“I love my host family. They make me feel at home. My English has improved a lot thanks to homestay!”
